Dear Dr M.Oskar Van Deventer,

We are pleased to confirm that you have successfully set the new Guinness World Records title for 'Largest order Rubiks / magic cube'.

Guinness World Records congratulates you on your achievement. Enclosed is your official Guinness World Records certificate confirming your title.

Details of your achievement have been entered into our Records Database as follows:

'The largest order magic cube is 17x17x17 cubes large and consists of 1,539 parts. It was created by Oskar van Deventer (Netherlands) and was presented at the New York Puzzle Party Symposium in New York, USA, on 12 February 2011.'

We know what an incredible experience it is to join the Guinness World Records family of record holders. We also recognise that achieving your Guinness World Records title is only part of the journey. Many record holders choose to publicise and spread the word of their record-breaking achievement. To support our record holders in doing this Guinness World Records has a range of promotional options to help make the most of any world record title.

As a Guinness World Records title holder some of the options available to you are:

- Official Record Holder logos for use in print or online
- Guinness World Records logo for use on products, promotions or advertising
- Personalised Guinness World Records certificates
- Personalised editions of the Guinness World Records book

These promotional services can be tailored to your needs and record-breaking achievement, and each carries an individual cost.

You can also find out more via our website – www.guinnessworldrecords.com – where you can log-in and select claim 336696.

We are pleased to welcome you to the very select club of Guinness World Records title holders.

Yours sincerely,

Kristian Teufel
